

The First Use of the K4B-Virus on American Citizens

While the scientists in Russia were developing the K4B-Virus, they ran into trouble when experimenting with humans. The Russian scientists could not get enough of the right kind of human victims. So, they got in touch with their chemical weapons friends in China. The Chinese scientists agreed to help and provide the humans.

However, the Chinese scientists insisted that they do the final stage of infecting each human. This is the most delicate and difficult part to handle. Mostly because each Project must be customized and each individual requires their own slight customization of the K4B-Virus. (Russia's friends were already using humans on some of their own medical experiments and they wanted to compare results.)

The Chinese scientists worked in the biological laboratory at Wuhan, China. The development, testing, and final insertion into humans was complicated by 2 main factors: (1) The required reaction of the victim had to be customized for each targeted Project and for each individual and (2) the delivery method had to be in liquid form and in a unique spray bottle, that enabled the spray and dosage to be adjusted.

In addition, the major problem was that the spray had to be transformed into a different substance which is so secret that only 1 Chinese individual was allowed to know what it was. Death to all would occur if ever disclosed beyond that individual.

The non-profits that Soros created for this Project, were given detailed instructions on what kind of individuals to hire. This included their type of personality and that they must have an affinity to dislike Donald Trump. The non-profits were then instructed to hire just one individual who would handle the chemical that would be used. The others were not allowed to know about or even see the chemical.

Here is how it works. The agitators that were hired by the Soros funds would devise a plan for what agitation they wanted to implement - and the personality of those that were recruited for the Project. They would send that information to the non-profit. All the individuals must dislike Trump.

When the Chinese laboratory in Wuhan, China received such information from the non-profit, they would prepare and tests a customized spray formula on at least 3 humans. If all 3 reacted as planned, China would send a batch of the formula to Russia and a batch of spray bottles to the non-profit. The bottles were immediately shipped to the non-profit via Home Depot in America and labeled as weed killer.

The non-profit would spray at least 5 boxes of cookies, usually Oreo, with the substance. The next day, they would phone the hired leader of the Protesters and say, "Your party cookies are ready to be picked up." At the Welcome Party for the Protesters, arranged by their Leader, they would have the usual coffee, soda pop, and Oreo Cookies to eat. They never knew the difference.

The next day, the Protesters would be fully infected – and ready to start their protesting. Almost immediately, they would start running after, kicking, and beating the Trump supporters – while laughing and dancing.

That was the first series of American Projects using the K4B-Virus. The Virus worked as planned and as designed. A great success. Word was sent back to Russia and to China to let them know the results.

Based on success of the first K4B-Virus in America, the Soros non-profits began to implement their disruptive and terrible protesting at Trump rallies all across the country.

Other Projects included street fires, store damage and destruction, attending and disrupting political speeches and rallies, and the same at town-hall meetings, political gatherings, and others.

The K4B-Virus is actually not a virus. It changes the intellectual workings of the brain and causes the victim to react in a predetermined way, as designed in a computer program. The program than prints out the instructions for producing and customizing the K4B-Virus.
